Mixed Ensilage.

Mr. E. W. Stewart, of Eric county, New York, makes some very good points in advocating the ensilage of other and better fodder than that of corn, so that the product shall be a a whole and complete food. All the byfodders, such as linseed and cotton-seed meal, bran, middlings, etc., he says, would be quite inadequate to supply all feeders, if they were to adopt them in connection "with ensilage maize. So it becomes the part of wisdom to start the ensilage system on the right basis; make the farm self-sustaining. Let ensilage contain a mixture of all the grasses, including corn, and then cows will do well on it, when preserved in the best manner, as on pasture. An acre of winter rye ensilage with an acre of clover (both are ready to cut at the same time), will make a very wellbalanced fodder. As acre of millet or Hungarian grass, an acre of second crop clover and an acre of corn, ensilaged together, will make an excellent ration for milk, without grain. And grain may be added by those who produce the greatest yield of milk, as many now do, even to pasture. A crop of peas and oats raised together will be ready to ensilage with early planted corn, and the combination will make a most satisfactory ration.

In short, he claims that "there may be a hundred combined rations ensilaged, which may produce meat or wool, without food. Again we can scarcely realize the value of ensilage in drouth. If the dairyman will take oue-third of his pasture land and put it into meadow or clover, or portions into millet, corn, oats, etc., and preserve them in silos, he will not only have abundant food to carry his present stock through any drought that may occur, but enough to winter his stock as well. Since he must furnish extra food in a severe drought, let him study this economy, and grow the extra food on hand now devoted to pasture, and in that way he will make his pastures feed his stock better than they have ever been fed all the year round. It certainly does appear that the ensilage system would most completely cure the calamity of drouth, because it would furnish the food in a succulent condition, and in as great variety as the pasture itself when all these grasses shall be ensilaged. And will not this great saving of land quite compensate for all the labor? We think it will, with a large margin besides. One thing is clear, the dairyman will never produce a satisfactory yield from his herd upon pasture alone, and he cannot too soon consider the best method to produce a the season.

The Largest Farm in the World.

The Agricultural Review for August contains an interesting history of the Burr Oaks farm, in Champaign county, Illinois. It was originally established by Mr. M. L. Sullivant, who purchased 40,000 acres of land. He attempted the cultivation of corn with hired labor, and in 1871 his crop aggregated 600,000 bushels, but he failed, and three years ago Mr. Hiram Sibley became the owner. He changed the policy of managing the farm, divided it into tracts of from 80 to 320 acres, erecting a farmhouse and barn on each, and located good men with families on them, giving them a share of the crop for their labor. He supervised the whole, furnishing the land, building and seeds, and directing the kinds of crops to be raised and the method of cultivation. One hundred and forty-six farmers are thus engaged, and 134 houses and barns have already been erected for their use. During the past year fifty-four houses and the same number of barns were built, or an average of one a week. More are in course of construction. Thus far over $100,000 have been spent by Mr. Sibley in improvements. The buildings are of the best class and all are painted, including the roofs; in fact everything is done well and substantially. The farm is eight miles long by eight miles wide, and though only two years have elapsed since it became the property of Mr. Sibley, it has now in the centre a flourishing town, with a large grain elevator, where all the produce of the farm is shipped to market by railroad. There is also a school building, churches, a hotel and a newspaper published there. A large portion of the various crops are for supplying seeds for the seed firm of Hiram Sibley & Co., of Rochester, New York. There are 1,089 horses and mules, 1,700 head of cattle, 1,220 sheep, and 1,135 hogs on the farm at the present time. Four rivers take their rise on the farm, and there are never-failing wells. Four hundred miles of ditches have been dug in draining the ground properly, and carp ponds are to be con-

Thoughts from Thackeray.

Proud of his newly acquired knowledge of the art of exhausting the contents of an egg, the well-known little boy of the apologue rushed to impart his knowledge to his grandmother, who had been for many years familiar with the process which the child had just discovered. Which of us has not met with some such instructors? I know men who are ready to step forward and teach Taglioni how to dance, Tom Sayers how to box, or the Chevalier Bayard how to be a gentleman. We most of us know such men, and undergo, from time to time, the ineffable benefit of their patronage.-Philip.

Ah! fiends and tortures! a gentleman may cease to love, but does he like a woman to cease to love? People carry on ever so long for fear of that declaration that all is over. No confession is more dismal to make. The sum of love has set. We sit in the dark, I mean you, dear madam, and Corydon, or I and Amaryllis-uncomfortably, with nothing more to say to one another; with the night-dew falling, and risk of catching cold, drearily contemplating the fading West, with "the cold remains of lustre gone, of fire long passed away." Sink, fire of love! Rise, gentle moon, and mists of chilly evening.

And my good Amaryllis, let us go home to some tea and a fire.—Philip.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drig poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. been begun, there should be a steady increase up to the point of sufficiency, and never a decrease. Corn, of course, is the principal food but it is advisable to feed cooked potatoes and pumpkins mixed with mill stuffs once a day. Plenty of trough room is a necessity, and plenty of pure water should be sup-plied twice a day. The hog will drink a great deal of water as the practical hog raiser well knows. The greatest care should be exercised to so feed that the animal will not be compelled to eat filth as well as food. If corn is fed it should be fed upon a dry floor, when possible. Neither good pork or much of it can come from feeding filth. The salting of hogs is a very important matter, and they will not and cannot do well without a regular supply of salt. It should be given them once a day, and can be given in ground oats-which is an excellent fat-producing food-or in the cooked mixture mentioned above. If the directions given are followed the results will be satisfactory. Hograisers should make it an object to produce pork that is healthy and good in every respect. There is a deep-seated prejudice against pork under the most favorable circumstances, and it is to the interest of pork producers to remove this. But poor and diseased pork can only increase this prejudice. In all our markets is pork that is not fit for consumption, and consumers know it. As this paper has frequently said, good pork is good and healthy food, and after awhile, if pork-raisers strive to produce good pork, the universal public will learn this fact.

A Small Garden.

If your space is limited you naturally wish to make the most of it, and utilize the shady spots as well as those favored by sunshine. Ferns and flowering begonias admirably fill up shady corners. We know of one unsightly corner formed by a wall and a fence that was transformed into beauty by means of summer blooming begonias, interspersed with tradescantia and low growing ferns. For haif shade there is the splendid scarlet lobelia, which in a sideyard, par tially damp, we saw run into variagations from the original deep searlet up to rose-pink, and even white, all being remarkably beautiful.

After an experience of twenty-five years in sell-ing this oliment, and during that time having closely watched its effects, and having the testi-mony of my friends and neighbors to confirm my confidence in its merits, I became fully satisfied of its value, and I have bought the exclusive right to make and sell it, and offer it to you as the best rem-edy in the world, especially for all forms of Piles. READ THE TESTIMONIALS:

Having been afflicted for ten years, at intervals, with that distressing malady, the piles, and after many ineffectual trials of the remedles in common use, I commenced a short time ago to use your Pile Cointment. I experienced immediate relief. From the relief experienced in my case, as well as from the reputation so rapidly acquired by your Chimment in this vicinity. I have no hesitation in expressing the opinion that it is the most efficient remedy for piles ever invented.

O. A. BULL, LaGrange, Ga,

By the advice of Mr. Wynn, I used your Pile Cintment on a servant girl who had been suffering for eight years with a most aggravated case of piles. She improved from the very first day's use of your Cintment, and before using the box she was entirely recovered. G. W. FOSTER, Cussets, Als.

This is to certify that I have used Pryor's Pile Contment, and say that it is, in my opinion, the best remedy for piles ever presented to the public. I say this from a positive application of the remedy on my own person. THOS. B. MORGAN, Troup County. Ga. Troup County, Ga.

Mother and daughter go down together. A lovely maiden lenge into etermity! Wives and humbands, some and daughters are wrecked and lost. Many and hearts are left to mourn the loss. A humband lost his wife and daughters, a young man lost his betrothed.

A contemplation of these horrible "wrecks" work wonderfully upon the mind. The thought makes one feel and. The atrain upon delicate female nerves is too great. A married lady of our acquaintaines was so wrought upon mentally that the became low-spritted and end, lost bet appetite, effused food, became feeble and emaciated, nervous and frorful. Her friends instated that she should not think of these "wrecks" so much, but she insisted that she was sick in reality, and took her bed. She soon had aches and pains, and worked herself into a net-work of female troubles, which eventually ended in chronic female weaknesses and excesses and death.

Another case in point was that of a young lady. She had het a friend and soon became melancholy and nervous, could not sleep soundly, her memory began to fail bor, she lost all desire for company, her brain lost its brilliancy, her eye its inster, her checks became pale, complained of constant headache, and finally fell a wictim to a list of female troubles, hystorics, papiniations, defirium, casualisions, and death. These case: are of every day occurrence, and these "wrecks" upon female sectory are frightful. They should be remedied, and there is a remedy within the reach of all, and it is your duty to apply it.

No one need complain, for dr. dromgeole's english female bitters will cure all such. A hook is published giving disalls of all these "wrecks." Send your name to j. p. dromgeole and co., lonisville, ky, and give one free.

This is to certify that I have tried Pryor's Pile Ontment in a case of piles, and state that it gave more relief than anything I have ever tried. I further state that as a remedy for burns it is unparalleled. I also used it for a case of tetter in my feet, of twenty years' standing, and say that it is the first thing that I have ever tried that gave me more than momentary relief. I consider now that I am entirely relieved from that distressing disease.

JOHN D. MEWSOM.

This is to certify that I used Pryor's Cintment in a case of severe burn, and that in a very few days it was entirely relieved of all inflammation, and healed rapidly. After the first application of the Cintment, the patient suffered no pain whatever.
